Course Objectives	This course aims to walk you through the current legal environment of China, its origin, logic, structure, and evolution, hence fostering a deep understanding and practice in real-life scenarios, upon the issue of start-ups conducting better businesses in China, for the senior college students and/or graduate students. The main goals of this course lays in three sectors: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>○ To provide the in-person academic teaching and coaching experience, a completion of 2-credit course.</li> <li>○ To provide the international students a framework to equip, a toolkit to find, an in-depth observation of cross-culture businesses, with their on-hand business blueprints or business extension plans throughout China, if any.</li> <li>○ Local students are also welcome to attend, though this course's focus is for the international students, however, in an unusual perspective to dive deep and understand Chinese legal environments may also craft for their future careers.</li> </ul>

Course Description	How to make money in China? How to avoid to losing money within China? While the first issue suits business schools, the latter is a typical law school issue. However, this course, Legal Aspects of Start-ups Doing Business in China, stands up in between, in the belief that without the helmet and shield from the legal premise, a business pioneer would risk all the efforts of his innovations, products and business models in the long-term race, not to mention safeguarding his harvest from such business. A proper parachute is instantly and constantly necessary before the entrepreneurship soars high into blue sky. This course applies PEST and SWOT analyses, as well as case-study methods, in the POV of a start-up, to walk the students through the whole business-life, including but not limited to soft-landing phase, the formation of business, the transaction rules, the legal compliance of routine operations, and the dispute resolutions. Students shall get their scores based upon the attendance and performance of class and assignments, presentation(s), and the performance of final examination. The percentage of A scores shall not exceed to 30% of total participants of the enrolled class.
Course Requirements: The study of this course involves attending lectures, discussing key concepts and its real-life applications. It is acceptable for the pre-discussion for the homework assignments, but each student must complete all assignments independently. It is also encouraged for the students to read popular on-line/off-line press widely and see related phenomena in real life and use what they have learnt in class to analyze them. Thus, the students are all needed to join a We-chat group for the updating reading materials and/or follow-up discussion(s).
Teaching Methods: This course starts with challenging issues for start-ups doing business in China and will provide an in-depth survey of Chinese Legal Tradition &amp; Legal Philosophy on a historic-cultural analysis basis. The course will aid the international students a better understanding of Chinese legal culture as a part of business environment, the students will be learning not only from the legal texts but also from discovering the unspoken rules of cultural-genetic application of laws and regulations in China under the current transition. Doctrine-hermeneutics and case-analysis will be applied in each part of the course.
Course Director's Academic Background: Prof. WANG Jun (James) jointed in Fudan's Law Faculty after he graduated from Peking University in 1985. The design of class discussion or exercise, practice, experience and so on:

Class Participation

There will be in-class quizzes, presentation(s), discussions, and/or other exercises each time class meets and if/when available online.

Homework Assignments

There will be no less than two off-line homework assignments and one presentation for each registered student throughout the winter session. Homework assignments will be comprised of mini-papers and case analyses (legal-battle workshops based upon group cooperation). The purpose of homework is to get knowledge and skills so that to better prepare not only for the tests, but also a preparation for real-life practice. Students are encouraged to work in groups but should write up their own answers. Assignments are due at the beginning of the mid-week class. Please be sure to staple the pages together before you hand it in, while the PDF files of assignments should also be sent at e-learning platform for school records. Late homework may be accepted with certain penalty on the due date, beyond which there will be more penalty for later submission, but a 3-days or more delay will be regarded as a give-up of such assignment.

Presentation(s) of Ritual

Students are encouraged to apply their presentation(s) into legal-battle workshops either in class or in one of the field trips. When the number of participants is over 30 in the class, presentation(s) shall be made upon group-work basis.

Field Trip

Course topic related field trip(s) is on the list of course activities, on the condition of the class scale, at the students' ex-curriculum availability. Yet the course has been designed as a walking-through framework to real scenarios for the future entrepreneurs, all the students are encouraged to participate such field trip(s)
